THE KILLIAN CURSE

School can be an evil place...

The Killian Curse is a comedy-horror kidult show about a cursed classroom.

In episode one, the new students of Room 21 are told a frightening story... In 1906, a man called Charles Killian founded Killian High School. An eccentric man, he met an 'accidental' death when locals discovered he was teaching the ways of demonology to impressionable young students. He is now sending demons from the underworld to terrorise the current students, and wreak havoc on those responsible for his death.

The 21 students in Room 21 each face one of Killian's evil curses, a battle with a beast sent from the underworld. From vampires, witches, warlocks, and werewolves to aliens, the students all have a different terror to face. And, each of their curses is specifically tailored to their own personal weaknesses! There are unimaginable consequences should they not beat this curse - Killian will take their soul... forever. He only needs 11 more souls until he has enough power to return from the dead and seek vengeance!

Not everyone will succeed; but will enough of the Room 21 students win to stop the curse? The show is fun, tongue-in-cheek and scary. A must-see children's horror show, even if it's watched from behind the couch!

Designing the terrifying creatures for The Killian Curse, was none other than WETA's Richard Taylor (Lord of the Rings trilogy and King Kong), the triple Academy Award-winning special effects guru. The young actors include Jacinta Waiwai (King Kong, Into the Blue), Cameron Wakefield (Road to Terebithia, and Australasia's youngest Elvis impersonator), Georgia Fabish (Into the Blue), and James Shaw (The New Tomorrow). The adult cast include some of New Zealand's veteran actors; Nathaniel Lees (Star Wars, The Matrix), Nick Blake (Shortland Street), Jed Brophy (Lord OfThe Rings, Heavenly Creatures), Grant Roa (Whale Rider), and Stephen Ure (Lord of the Rings).
